

A GUIDE TO PORTLAND PUBLIC ART

TRANSIT MALL

TRANSIT MALL Murals, fountains, abstract and representational works — many created by local artists — grace downtown Portland's Transit Mall (Southwest Fifth and Sixth avenues). Many pieces from the original collection, installed in the 1970s, were resited in 2009 along the new MAX light rail and car lanes. At that time, 14 new works were added.

ART ALL AROUND

You can't live in or visit Portland without encountering public art. Using this map as your guide, begin your walking tour from any point and discover a surprising mix of artistic styles, materials and settings within any given 10-block radius. You'll find public art integrated into architectural facades, along the tree, in the parks, inside public buildings and in the sculpture garden outside of the Portland Art Museum.

Pose for a photo with the sculpture from the famous "Expose Yourself to Art" poster (Kvinnelyckhet, #33 on map), which featured Portland Mayor Bud Clark. And visit the city's oldest public artwork — Skidmore Fountain (#105), installed in 1888 to quench the thirst of "horses, men and dogs."

If the weather isn't cooperating for an outdoor tour, visit the Public Art Gallery on the second floor of the Portland Building (#24) to get an overview of public art in the region and to learn the story behind the creation of Portlandia. (See "Indoor Arts," right, for details.)

The pieces listed in this guide were created by local, regional and international artists and were commissioned or purchased by the City of Portland, Multnomah County, TriMet, the State of Oregon or private corporations.
